

April 23, 2021

This is it - the final stretch: The 2021 legislative session ends Sunday. While many bills have successfully passed, a hurdle separates some from the finish line.

When the House and Senate pass different versions of the same bill, one of the chambers has to concede and accept the changes. If neither chamber relents, a conference committee is convened to deliberate. Without a consensus or if time runs out, a bill will fail.

Time is short and several high-profile bills are in conference committees. Engage with your representatives about these matters as well as the capital, operating and transportation budgets.

Should you have ideas about new legislation or changes to existing law, reach out to us or your representatives. Legislation begins with you.
